SINCE THE FOUNDING OF THE THE POZNAŃ SOCIETY FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF ARTS AND SCIENCES in 1857, philosophers have played an active role in the Society's scientific work, as well as in activities aimed at propagating knowledge among fellow citizens. We need only mention the first president of the Society, Count August Cieszkowski, and Karol Libelt.

Continuing in this tradition, the present leadership of the PTPN Philosophy Committee took the initiative to publish, jointly with the Faculty of Philosophy of the Adam Mickiewicz University, the series Wykłady Poznańskie z Filozofii [Poznań Lectures in Philosophy], the ambition of which is to restore the spirit of res publica literaria to our times, but in a new form: democratised and open to critical citizens who are striving for an enlightened understanding of the world around them.

When absorbed in research that seeks to deepen the current state of human knowledge, we often underestimate the importance of sharing the results with a wider circle of educated readers. We hope that the series of Poznań Lectures in Philosophy and the accompanying public lectures will serve as an agora for deliberations between scholars and enlightened citizens of the Republic of Poland.
